

The Dilemma

June 21, 2020

I used to have a painting on my office wall; a duck is sitting in a corner with brush, dripping from yellow paint in hand, and the entire room floor (with the exception of the little place he is sitting) is already painted yellow. His face doesn't look like Ol' Joe Biden, Chuck Schumer, Nancy Pelosi, or Joe Clyburn; just to sample the long list of these people. No, the duck has a surprised face knowing what he got himself into. Which differentiates him from these socialist liberals (a.k.a. "Democrats") and their main guy Ol' Joe Biden. While the duck is honestly shocked, all these have the clueless arrogance hanging on their faces.

Yep, they have no clue what they worked themselves into. So let's review the real situation shall we?

The basic concept has been since mid 2016 to oppose Donald Trump in any way possible. Legal, illegal, slime, spineless, criminal, anti-American; it didn't matter. While in the process, they noticed that Trump is sitting on and occupy the political spectrum's center. They first tried to paint him as a Nazi (Van Gogh wouldn't have more ways to paint someone they painted Trump), but nothing worked. Trump could not be moved off center. After a while (around mid 2018) they decided to grow some brain (no one told them it's late) and they started to create distance between Trump and themselves by moving to the left. They ended up so much on the left that by now one of their feet is above the (grave) hole, and the other barely hanging on to some solid ground.

The mistake (at least: one of them) in all these was that they didn't notice: the people didn't move with them. They just excited a different crowd. It is like the piano cords; you hit the high note key, you will hear that sound. Hitting the high note key will not excite half of the piano's cords.

The socialist liberals went from hitting the political piano's mid section all the way to the very last key on the left. By now they started to notice the obvious: one key on the piano creates the relevant sound. The "relevant sound" of the key they arrived to play, otherwise called MeeToo, Black Lives Matter, Defund Police, Seattle's Socialist Republic of CHOP, marching, looting, defacing national hero's statutes, and graffiti on St. Patrick Church in Manhattan. It is true that –thanks to the virtually non-existing education system and the complete break down of our society- the far left key on the piano has been getting pretty jammed up; a lot more lunatic had crowded the place during the Obama years. However, when it comes to vote, the fringe lunatics of this country just won't be enough for Ol' Joe to move into Pennsylvania Ave. He will need some of the center and the entire left side of the field, minimum 92% of the black votes and most Latino votes. Otherwise Ol' Joe will irritate the daylight out of Jill in the next four years at home.

To demonstrate the current position of the Socialist Liberal Party (SLP) vis-à-vis their electorate, this is what they are looking at:

Socialist Liberal Party

As you (hopefully) noticed, the chart is "blind" in every aspect, except available IQ and political leanings. It is especially blind to race and education level. On the one hand, thanks to President Trump, there is a growing awareness in the black segment of the society about how the entire SLP has been selling them down the river for decades. The chart also shows that the individual doesn't need to be black to be in any place on the chart's left side; in fact the gravest danger to the American ideology and our Constitution today is white, educated, and was born after 1980.

The Dilemma

If you want some proof, here is one: how about the Bernie Sanders phenomena? Interestingly, there are only two politicians who have not changed their opinion and program for four decades; President Trump and Bernie. So, I respect Bernie. His problem; he is campaigning in the wrong country ... or is he? Let's just say, Bernie would have campaigned in the wrong country up until around 2008. Just think about this: how come that an old, self admitted socialist commands roughly 21% of the total US electorate? In the United States of America, in the "Mecca" of capitalism? Just pause for a second and let it sink.

All in all, SLP and Ol' Joe are sitting in this "corner" with dark red paint dripping off their brush:

- If they demonstrate "comfort" on their current field on the far left, --they lose Center, Independents and most of Center Left
- If they paddled back toward the center (a place where Ol' Joe spent most of his life), --they lose the crowded "deranged lunatic" field all the way to some part of "Center Left."

And Joe, neither option is enough brother to even be invited as a guest to 1600 Pennsylvania. To be a bit more specific:

- Black Lives Matter Ol' Joe's dilemma is a lot larger than it looks. Joe used to rely on black votes and with reason. He used to be popular in the black community. However, there is an anti SLP movement in the black community on the basis it was stated above; the blacks are tired of six decades worth of being taken to the cleaners by the SLP. So, Joe must decide how loudly he will support Black Lives Matter;
 - Stand by them and support them --he loses the rational side of the community.
 - Don't support them; --he will lose the (larger segment) lunatics.
- Pick a Vice President Not being careful enough, Joe declared a long time ago: "that person will be a woman." Now he has a dilemma: rational politics would dictate that you need a VP from a state you really need. Conversely you don't want a VP from a state you already have a lock on; for the first thesis, there is Amy Klobuchar, Senator in Minnesota. Talking about a "Mid-West girl!" ...yes, but Amy isn't black, and isn't a far left wing lunatic. Kamala Harris would qualify as black, but she is from California a Liberal La-La Land and she is on the far left. Not just that; after it came out that Florida Rep. Val Demings was on Joe Biden's list of possible VP nominees, Hawk Newsome a Black Lives Matter "leader" (out of N.Y.) said this: "Joe Biden would be an idiot to put her on the ticket... People are already on the fence about him..." "When black people become police officers, they are no longer black. They are blue." The reason Newsome opined was: before she was elected to Congress in 2016, Demings, who is black, had been a police officer and became the first woman to head the Orlando Police Department.
Ol' Joe's dilemma eclipses:
 - Pick the right but white woman from a right state; --he loses most of the black votes;
 - Pick the right black woman; --he will lose the white fringe element of the left;
 - Pick someone like Kamala Harris; --he loses most of the left field;
 - Pick the "wrong" black woman; --he loses a significant portion of the black voters.
- The Elisabeth Warren issue stands on its own. She is a fraud, an ultra left socialist lunatic, she is from Massachusetts a liberal paradise, and she is white. But she would deliver Joe the "white young educated socialist liberal" block, including a large part of Bernie's voting block.
 - Pick her; --you lose the black fringe votes, along with most everybody between the Center and Center Left.
 - Pick someone closer to the center; --you lose everyone on the "Far Left Lunatics" field.

The Dilemma

June 21, 2020

- Single Payer Healthcare Ol' Joe will have to make up his mind, because this will be asked from him by Trump every chance Trump gets. Joe's dilemma is a bad one:
 - Support single payer system; --he loses just about everyone all the way to the "Far Left Lunatics" field.
 - Don't support it; the Far Left Lunatics and the entire Bernie Sanders camp will deny ever knowing Joe.
- Defund Police! Beside it is being "the" dumbest idea this country has ever come up with, the dilemma it carries for Joe is identical to the Single Payer Healthcare.
 - Don't support it; --he loses the entire left field, especially the antifa gangsters and the Black Lives Matter fringe.
 - Support it; --he will lose everybody else
- Cancel Culture We have gotten to the point where tearing statues down, spray painting monuments and houses of worship, defacing national heroes' statues can go on at will. Joe will have to take position on these crimes;
 - Support it; --he will lose a lot, but --interestingly enough- he won't lose as much as he will supporting Defund Police! It leads us back again to an earlier statement of "in fact the gravest danger to the American ideology and our Constitution today is white, educated and was born after 1980."
 - Don't support it; --he will lose everybody in the Far Left Lunatics space and the center left.

So, where does this leave us?

Communism and Nazism have two pillars and two pillars only: they must break the pride in all individuals in the society and they must transform the cascade of individual relationships into a one-on-one relationship between the individual and the system. Barack Hussein Obama kicked our society down this steep slope and the rolling speed has been accelerating. In a strange way, the "system" today isn't the federal government; it is major corporations that can thank their very existence to America, but now they are leading the charge to destroy it, supported by 98% of the American media. Today's liberal establishment of high-tech companies and their puppets in the media are functioning as a shadow government.

- Over the last month, most major corporations announced to "donate" (more like a pay-off or pay ransom) significant amount of money to organizations (Black Lives Matter among them) that are busy to tear the country down. Nike donated $40M, Adidas $20M, plus promised racial quota at hiring (which is illegal), Walmart $100M, P&G 5M, EA $1M, Warby Parker $1M, Anastasia $0.5M, Twitter CEO $3M, TikTok $4M.
- Minnesota Freedom Fund raised $30M to get rioters out of jail. On the one hand, the "Freedom Fund" declared: it discriminates based on skin color (who they assist), which is completely illegal in this country, and --on the other hand- they used a total sum of $200,000 (of the $30 million) to their cause. No one knows where all the rest of the money has gone.
- Quaker Foods taking the popular, beloved, 130 year old "Aunt Jemima's" face off their maple syrup bottle after Black Lives Matter protested. Kristin Kroepfl, one of the VPs at Quaker said: "We recognize Aunt Jemima's origins are based on a racial stereotype."
- NBC established its "News Verification Unit" (just think about this vis-à-vis "First Amendment Right");

The Dilemma

June 21, 2020

- Google “de-platforms” anyone with opposing views (like they did with Federalist);
- Twitter cancelling accounts and censoring content;
- Wall Street Journal has a team of “moderators” that won’t allow text that doesn’t fit WSJ’s narrative be published in their “comment” section,
- HBO has pulled “Gone With The Wind” off,

And so far no one has stood up telling Black Lives Matter and these other clowns to “Get lost.”

It is all to force you to mindlessly obey to a new power structure if you want to keep your life, business, home and your family safe. The one-on-one relationship is clearly on display; if Nike wants to stay popular, they must pay up to the “system.” It is communism, or Nazism. Either, but probably the first “top-down revolution” in human history; one that the “elite” is hoisting on the society because their hatred of it. Their hatred that manifests itself in one person: Donald J. Trump.

...which introduces another a dilemma into the equation.

Based on Trump’s list of achievements that is as long as Obama’s list of ways he went about destroying America, SLP candidate for presidency in 2020 should not have a chance. Any candidate. However, an interesting paradigm is forming.

- SLP –mindlessly as they are- have been busy building the deadliest trap for themselves in American history. Building and supporting this half Nazi (and this is an “accurate description” kids, not a “name calling”) system across the nation and in the media, they closed down any avenue to understand the size of the potential Trump voting block. There is no way to know, because “freedom of speech” is non-existent in the United States of America today. What we do know: there are over one million people wanting to get into a Trump rally in Oklahoma held in a stadium for 22,000. But this is about “the” closest indication we have.
- This absolutely out of hand situation with “turned out, Michigan has a crazy lunatic for governor”, Seattle’s CHOP, N.Y. under Cuomo and de Blasio, California under this psychopath Newsom and L.A. under Garcetti, (...the list is long and undistinguished) could push a lot of “I don’t know who to vote for” voters into the Trump camp. People, who otherwise would have never voted for Trump are realizing what a cesspool SLP has built. People have just had enough of this liberal sewage.
- The point above can significantly alter the “democratic” votes,if all this mess will be enough for voters to (finally) wake up and realize who and what caliber people did they vote into power for decades.
- People (at least some of them) will also realize how much SLP, high-tech and media have formed a circular alliance; one constantly assisting the other two. This is not America, this is not Constitution and definitely not Freedom of Speech. It’s Nazism. And people will have enough of it.
- It will also play for the “Trump Team” that this entire mess is too far from election to have a direct negative impact on it, but just close enough for voters to remember the mess and CHOPS. If it was in late September, that would be too close; if it was 14 months away; that would be too far. If Trump will fix at least some of the problems and the unemployment sinks below 8% by November, no force on earth will stop The Donald to live in the White House for four more years.
- Ol’ Joe will also join Trump’s team as soon as he wonders out of his cave he has been hiding. Joe has not been sinking (no, he is not leading; those polls are conducted by the same people whose “expert forecast” predicted Hillary Clinton’s win by a landslide), because he is not allowed to talk. Once he did; ..game is over.

On the other hand

- American presidential elections are decided in 5-6 swing states and –because there is no way of knowing- the election can come down to a handful of voters. And “The Donald” hasn’t been helping his own cause.
- The Brooklyn New Yorker in him keeps taking him over; he still doesn’t understand the concept of “The Moon never responds when the dog is barking at it from the Earth.” It is not The Donald’s language, it is not his constant social media communication, it is his urge to bark back at every piss-ant liberal dogs. I mean to reply to Joe Scarborough and especially his completely hollow headed, wondering psychopath wife ... The Donald just doesn’t get it that he brings himself down to these cretins’ level. He after 3.5 years still hasn’t really nailed the concept of POTUS. The other problem with this is the “golden rule” of “65% of every society is an unable to think, mindless moron.” And this specific 65% will understand Scarborough better than they will The Donald.
- As a “thinking person” (along with many of my friends) I was scratching my head when The Donald stated “I fell in love with Kim jong-un”; by that he meant the North Korean Butcher Dictator. And “he has great relationship with Xi Jinping” the concentration camp builder and the face recognition Nazi system developer of China. You can be cordial to these people, but you just “don’t fall in love” with someone, who holds tens of millions of people in a large concentration camp, called N. Korea. Just don’t.

One thing is for sure: the United State of America is living through a historic time. Three decades worth of active but mindless, criminal liberalism took the nation, the society and our culture into the sewage ditch. I mean the bottom of that. Should you want a direct report card on the liberals’ “achievements” over the last three decades here it is:

In the Rodney King case our country everywhere, California included remained on hold, was standing by, waiting for the verdict. The “Rodney King riot” started after the unjust verdict (why people had to loot is another conversation). That was 1992.

In 2020 (18 years later) the night after the George Floyd case, half of the country got burned down (and looted, and defaced by the brave antifa and Black Lives Matter gladiators).

Kids, that is the difference

This entire mess will come down to this: what is the ratio in the swing states between:

- White, educated, young, stupid to no end voters +
- Never Trumpers +
- Black votes
- Left of center Latinos

and

- Conservatives +
- Disillusioned blacks +
- Conservative blacks +
- Independents +
- Center right
- Right of center Latinos

My money is on The Donald however, this “65%” had gotten Barack Hussein Obama, the most Anti American, in fact America hater socialist community organizer into the presidency. Twice. Further example of the “65%” how the Brits kicked out Winston Churchill from the government literally months after Churchill (almost by himself) won World War II. and saved humanity from Nazism. As I said, you cannot trust the 65%.

But, if you look at the political ledger, The Donald has about equal chance today as he had in 2016.
