

Half of the world has been wondering about and expressing opinion on “was the Corona pandemic intentional or wasn’t?” The number of shades of this particular gray equals the number of people participating in the debate. The only problem with the concept; it’s useless to think about it because the origination of the pandemic is the least of the issue.

Just think of it this way: the so called “intellectual half of the planet” (between San Francisco and the Eastern border of Hungary) has been so “intellectual” over the last four decades that the number of major disasters they developed is practically infinite. On November 1, 2019 we had

- Illegal immigration in several major countries; pretty much everywhere between the South-eastern half of the Turkish border and San Francisco
- Education being a disaster across the same area
- Dumb, unable to think population created by social media (numbering in the billions)
- The practical thought fascism by the same “social” media companies going hand in hand with two dozen or so governments
- High-tech firms landing a helping hand to governments to spy on their own citizens
- Corrupt tinpot despots and lunatics are in country leadership positions (in this case the “tinpot” refers to the “leaders” not the size of the country they’re running into the ground)
- Healthcare disasters
- EU having “0.5% GDP growth” over the previous decade; and they had to lie even for that much
- The German chancellor flooded Europe with illegal immigrants
- The same German chancellor had been working to hook up half of Europe’s gas supply onto Russian sources
- Shrinking European population
- Anti-police wave
- Strong anti-Semitism in France; as a result, the largest population moving to Israel from around the world was from France
- Large number of areas within the Republic of France where French police and military couldn’t (wouldn’t) enter; those areas had Shariah law being practiced
- Anti-Semitism, racism, cultural wars no one wanted
- The progressive-anarchist madness manifesting itself in gangs such as black lives matter, antifa and others
- Sex change operation, newly created “women” legally playing in women sports destroying them
- Taliban was going back to power in Afghanistan
- Iran was the largest terrorism sponsor around the world

just to mention a few of the headliner types.

It is obvious, this much garbage cannot be cleaned up easily (more precisely: cannot be cleaned up at all). Up until around 2019 November, most of these so called “leaders” knew: they’re hanging by their fingernails because the problems were getting worse. It didn’t make their life any easier that the President of the United States started to ask questions such as “how come you signed to contribute to NATO’s budget at 2% of GDP and you haven’t been doing it?”, or “why is it the that the US pays 20% tariff on something where Europe (or Canada, China, etc.) pays 2%?” President Trump asked a lot of other ones too, like “How is it that the US Congress created a law in 1995 to move the US Embassy to Jerusalem and no one has had done a thing since?”

Most of these “leaders” didn’t really know what they were doing (just think of the German chancellor bringing several millions of illegal Muslim refugees onto Europe, then wanting to order the EU members to participate in “equal sharing”) but what they really had no clue about was this: how will their citizens react when their countries or regions implode? Most of them have seen uprisings, revolutions even assassinations; they were concerned how much their own people will submit themselves to a drastic level of lifestyle change? Kim Jong-un can do anything he wants in N. Korea; that’s probably (they thought) not true for Ottawa, Los Angeles, Chicago, N.Y., London, Madrid, Amsterdam, Milan, Munich, Warsaw, Budapest just to mention a few places. On November 1, 2019 the US hasn't yet seen the madness caused by the Floyd case and the treasonous way how 12-15 US states' governors managed to burn their respective states to the ground. On top of that, the US was on the upswing in every sense of the world; politically and economically. The 2019 US was "the" only country on the planet climbing out of the four decades' worth of garbage. The rest of the "civilized western world" looked like a car running toward the edge of the cliff with no driver and break pedal on it.

Then came corona in January of 2020...

Corona was a Godsent to all mindless or incapable or criminally corrupt or despot or the combination thereof "leaders." Just think about it; there was not a single problem and/or disaster they created that they couldn't blame on corona. Struggling economy? Corona!! Students don't get education? Corona!! Hospitals have no beds, and there is a wending machine down in the lobby for toilet papers for patients? Corona!! Low GDP? Corona!! Immigrants? (cultural wars, anti-Semitism, thought fascism by social media, high-tech companies spying on citizens, drug, criminal activities spike....)? Corona!! Don't tell me this is not the Political Garden of Eden!

...But there was still one variable, an "yet to find" piece of the puzzle: how will billions of people around the world (especially the approximately 1.3 billion between San Francisco and the Eastern end of Hungary) react to literal oppression, house arrest, face mask and other restrictive (in fact, amounting to a police state, last seen in Soviet Union and communist Eastern Europe) orders especially in an environment where every single "medical expert" between San Francisco and the Eastern border of Hungary didn't state the same "fact" twice. More times than not they stated the 180 degrees opposite to what they said a week prior. You could say they were lying and you will be correct. So the big question had to be answered:

"We as a government having no clue what we are doing, our medical experts have even less, they are lying to us and to the public; how with "evidence" like this can we order tens, hundreds of millions of our people into house arrest? Order people to lose their jobs, their business, credits, investments, homes, educations, their livelihoods; -- on something we have no clue about?"

There was not a single political leader (from a school board president through a small town mayor to any large country's president) on the planet on January 1, 2020 who comprehended the potential willingness for blind submission of their groups, cities or countries' population; in fact 100% of these "leaders" were convinced: any kind of order half as restrictive as the orders actually became, will bring people onto the streets with various "tools" in their hands to correct the wrong. No one imagined it can be done and people will blindly, without any thinking submit themselves to one moronic order after another. There is no way Gavin Newsom or Cuomo in N.Y. imagined they can lock down their entire state in the face of Texas and Florida (being continuously open) having far better statistics than them. And no one will go onto the streets to find Newsom or Cuomo and "correct the wrong." How do I know this? That no one imagined it can be done? Because this (or any other kind) magnitude of society lockdown was never done before. No one has ever attempted to try.

Why is this so important? Because now these "leaders" (the new US government just joined them on January 20, 2021) understand the absolute sheep mentality of their people. They know people can be ordered into house arrest by a stroke of a pen. Hundreds of thousands of them; millions, tens of millions of them. And they will submit themselves to any moron's order (without any data or evidence or -most of the time- evidence to the contrary) to stay at home, lose job, business, savings, etc. It doesn't matter that "I order you to stay at home" by lying to you; --because you are not going to notice I lied. As a matter of fact (a' la Cuomo, Newsom and a list of others) the population will explain to itself and to each other why their "leaders'" lie is "not a lie" or it is a "necessary lie" --such as Fauci's lie about "masks are not effective.. ...now they are. I told you 'they aren't effective' because I didn't want you to go out and buy all of them up."

The scale of this realization is far larger than anyone today imagines or comprehends; the recipe is strikingly simple. It now known that creation of a (founded or unfounded) fearful situation will manipulate people to a point where they will blindly submit to anything, creating an inverse reality. Economy is bad? Corruption was uncovered? Illegal immigrants flooded the country? One idiotic decision was made after another? --and election is coming? Let's create an environment people fear and tell them "I protect you! Never mind I killed a few thousand of your relatives (Cuomo), I've run your city into the ground (de Blasio), I'm a complete idiot (Lightfoot, Newsom, Garcetti, Whitmer, Wheeler ...), or never mind my corruption; --you must vote for me because I will protect you in your fear." This recipe will be used time and time again in all forms.

And as a result, ---a whole lot more coming kids. This tool will be used again and again. You will see a lot more oppression imposed on you. Mark my word.
